It is essential to preserve wildlife if we want to avoid drought, new deserts, fires, and flooding. Additionally, this conservation assures that future generations of people and wildlife will grow up in harmony with nature and appreciate it as well as comprehend the value of wildlife. Additionally, wildlife serves as a gene pool for many disease-causing insect pests' resistant types. The presence of wildlife also improves food production. Birds, bats, and bees are just a few of the many pollinators that contribute to increased plant growth. Additionally, wildlife serves as a source of medicine. Different types of microscopic creatures, fungus, animals, and plants have some sort of positive impact on humans. Several different pharmaceutical medications are produced by wild plant species. SSBES' Institute of Technology and Management has arranged 'Helping Hands' campaigning to urge the society to save wildlife and to save Earth.

'Swachhta Hi Seva', the Cleanliness Awareness Rally was arranged by SSBES' ITM, Nanded to make awareness related with the importance of hygiene to the society. Students take out the placards showing the importance of sanitization for the health explaining cleanliness is next to the godliness.

SSBES's ITM also arraged a seminar for sirl students on the topic ' Leagl Rights of Women'. The objective of the Seminar was to guide the students about the rights of Women and to make them feel empowered by the protection and care that law has made available to them.

On March 10, 2018, the NSS Unit of SSBES' Institute of Technology and Management hosted Female Foeticide Awareness Rally. The rally's goal is to raise awareness of female foeticide. At the Rally, hundreds of students from our college participated.

The SSBES ITM students effectively applied their knowledge and interpersonal abilities. They were able to close the gap between society and youth in this way. In order to raise awareness of the societal evil of female foeticide, the students chanted slogans and carried placards.
