Blood Donation Award

Dr. Shankarrao Chavhan Government Medical College, Nanded, hosted a "Blood Donation award ceremony" on June 15, 2022. Young people are the world's future and hope for a secure blood supply because blood has the power to save millions of lives. Blood transfusions are essential for health care systems, which helps people with acutely serious illnesses or chronic diseases live longer and with higher quality of life. Today's healthcare professionals deal with severe blood illnesses, oncologic conditions requiring blood transfusions, hemorrhagic complications following surgery, childbirth, or significant accidents. In these circumstances, a significant amount of blood is necessary to fulfil a variety of needs, and many nations struggle with an increase in demand for blood or its components. Health services should contribute adequate blood to meet needs.

Every donation of blood improves or saves lives and fosters social cohesion. It conveys a potent message of support for one another, civic engagement, and social acceptance of UHC and Health for All. Adults in good health can donate blood, which is not only safe but also gives them a sense of community and pride. It also comes with a free physical examination. Communities and nations in the Region may guarantee that everyone has timely and equitable access to safe, efficient, and high-quality blood and blood products by building a stable base of regular, voluntary, unpaid blood donors and by ensuring the chain of blood transfusion.

With each blood donation having the capacity to save or improve up to three people's lives, and platelet donations able to help as many as 12 children, it's hard to thank donors enough for their selflessness. As Every donation counts The Blood Donation Recognition Award was given to SSBES' Institute of Technology and Management, Nanded to make the donors always feel valued, especially when they reach a donation milestone since on every Independence Day SSBES' Institute of Technology and Management, Nanded organizes a blood donation Camp under NSS programme.
